

6. Special Courses Conducted

1. Induction Course

The innovatively conceived Induction Course for freshly appointed Assistant Professors of AMU was launched in the academic session 2014-15. So far five such courses have been conducted. The idea behind the course is to help the AMU teachers grow into role models for students and develop a rounded personality in addition to subject knowledge. In this novel course sessions are engaged by University administration Officers of the AMU such as the Vice Chancellor, Pro Vice Chancellor, Registrar and Controller of Admissions. Other topics included are sartorial skills, effective communication, studying abroad, excellence in research and familiarity with the AMU history.

2. ICSSR training program

- The Indian Council for Social Science Research sponsored two weeks training programme on research methodology for research scholars in social science faculties and capacity building for social science faculty was held successfully, involving resource persons from universities and research institutes from across the country.
- In these residential programmes faculty and research scholars were trained in data collection, sampling and analysis techniques. Hands-on modern day research technique was imparted in practical sessions in the computer lab.
- Also the paper clinics held as part of the course chiseled the academic writing skills of the participants.

Special courses conducted

3. Self-financing research scholars course

- The UGC HRDC, AMU focused upon the constituency of AMU research scholars as budding academicians and designed some self-financed courses for them, as there is no provision from the UGC to hold short term course for research scholars.
- A survey was conducted with the resource persons and course coordinators of the AMU to search for the relevant topics on which courses for research scholars could be organised.
- These courses were offered at a nominal fee to all AMU research scholars and were held in the evening hours.

Topics such as 'How to teach effectively', 'Academic Writing', 'Data Analysis', 'How to write a research paper' and 'Research Methodology' 'Computer Applications' and 'Communication Skills' have been offered and a good response from research scholars was received. Most of the participants are enrolled in multiple courses
